It's the end of winter. A mother listen to the first sounds of her two new babies.

Let's call this mother Sky. And her babies are Scout and Amber.

Hi, little guys.

The first year is the hardest for parents. Sky will soon learn that. Almost half of all baby bears don't survive(幸存)their first year.

But for now, deep inside the hole, they're safe. It's warm and comfortable. And after the whole winter together, maybe it smells very bad

Sky worked hard last summer, and she ate over 90 pounds of fish a day to keep enough fat to spend these early months.

But now she's hungry. If she doesn't eat soon, there will be no milk for her babies.

There's a long, dangerous trip in front of them. Sky needs to get her babies down to the seaside, and she hopes that there will be plenty of salmon(鲑鱼)this summer. It will decide if(是否)the little Scout and Amber can live through the very first year.

But who knows?

Okay, sleeping time is over. These bears need to move in a hurry.

This is the story of their unbelievable first year...

48. Who do you think Sky is?

Are fables(寓言故事)and fairy tales(童话故事)different or the same? They are both stories for kids, but fables are stories for adult(成年人)as well.

A fable is a story passed down from grandparents to parents and then to children. People can learn much from it. The characters(人物)are mostly animals and nature. They can talk and act like humans. The most famous fables were written by a man called Aesop. There are around 600 fables in Aesop's Fables. The Fox and the Grapes and The Tortoise and the Hare are two examples.

Fairy tales are usually stories for children, often about magic characters such as fairy(仙女) and giants(巨人). Sometimes the characters are animals, We are able to enjoy these fairy tales because of the famous Brothers Grimm. They tried their best to collect these stories before people forgot them. There are many fairy tales in Grimm's Fairy Tales, such as Cinderella and The Frog Prince.

51. What does the passage mainly talk about?

I travel a lot, and I find out different "styles" of giving directions when I ask "How can I get to the post office?"

In Japan, people use landmarks(地标)in their directions because most streets don't have names. For example, the Japanese will say to travelers, "Go straight ahead and turn left at the hotel. The post office is across from the bus stop."

In the countryside of the USA, there are no towns or buildings in many places. Instead of landmarks, people will tell you directions and distances(距离). In Kansas, for example, people will say, "Go north two miles. Turn east, and then go another mile."

People in Los Angeles, California have no idea of distance. They measure (测量) distance in time, not miles. "How far away is the post office?" you ask. "Oh," they answer, "It's about five minutes from here."

Sometimes a person may not know the answer. What happens in such a situation? A New Yorker might say, "Sorry, I don't know." But in Yucatan, Mexico, no one answers, "I don't know." People believe that "I don't know." is impolite(不礼貌). They usually give an answer, often a wrong one. A traveler can get very, very lost in Yucatan!

55. Why do Japanese people use landmarks in their directions?
- A. Because they have no idea of distance.
 - B. Because there are no towns or buildings.
 - C. Because most streets have no names.
 - D. Because people don't know the answer.
56. Which of the following may people in Kansas say?

 - B. "It will take one day and a half."
 - C. "Turn south and then walk 300 meters."
 - D. "Go along Autumn Street and take the first crossing on the left."
57. What may happen in Yucatan?
- A. People there usually say, "Sorry, I don't know the way."
 - B. Local people often give a right answer.
 - C. People there have no idea of distance.
 - D. Visitors may lose their way
58. Where do people measure distance in time?
- A. In New York. B. In Los Angeles. C. In Kansas. D. In Yucatan.

Martin Lynch, an American learner, went to a small town in Japan for his holiday. One morning when going for a walk along the beach, he saw a farmer, Palo Perez. Martin watched Pablo unload (卸货)his boat and put the fish in a box.

Martin noticed that Pablo looked very happy. He could also see some large fish in the boat. Martin greeted Pablo and asked how long it took to catch the fish. "Just a few hours," replied Pablo. Martin asked, "Why didn't you stay longer and catch more fish?" "I have enough for my family," Pablo said. "And what do you do with the rest(其余的部分)of your day?" asked Martin. "I take a nap(午睡), play with my children, spend time with my wife, and go to see my friends and play cards. I have a full and busy life." Martin said if Pablo worked loner hours and caught more fish, he could make more money. With the money, Pablo could buy more bats and catch more fish. By selling the fish, Paulo could open his own company.

"Then what?" asked Pablo. "Well, you will move your company to a big city. At last, you will make millions of dollars and be happy." replied Martin. "How long will that take?" asked Pablo. Martin thought for a minute and said it would take at least 15 years.

"And then what?" asked Pablo.

"Well, that's the best part," Martin said. "You will retire(退休), buy a house near the sea, sleep longer, play with your children, spend more time with your wife, see your friends and play cards."
